

Friends for Life

By Will Taplin (Year 3)

Once upon a time there was a lonely man who was very sad and wanted someone to live with.

Suddenly he heard a noise sort of like someone cutting a tree down. After that he heard a yelp of fear so he turned around and looked behind him.

After that he saw a cheeky person cutting down a tree in which a gorilla lived. He wanted to save the gorilla and stop the cheeky man. The man had pale brown skin and long legs and he was bald.

The man ran over to save the gorilla but he was too slow. Once the cheeky man had finished cutting down the tree the man's face turned white with horror!

The man dived and just barely caught the gorilla. The gorilla was black and furry and loved the man so much for saving him.

The gorilla and the man lived together and developed a very strong bond between each other. The gorilla and the man lived together for many years and the man grew very sad when he had to release the gorilla back into the wild. The man was very sad but then the gorilla ran back through the forest and jumped into the man's arms. The man and the gorilla lived happily ever after.